	On May 13, 2005, Special Agent (SA) and United States  Secret Service Agent interviewed white male, Date Of Birth (DOB)  at the Ministry of State Security building, T'bilisi, Georgia. After being advised of the identities of the interviewing Agents and the purpose of the interview, voluntarily provided the following information:
	He attended the speech given by the President of the United States at Freedom Square after receiving an invitation from the General Prosecutors Office. He expressed interest in attending so they gave him an invitation.
•	He arrived at Freedom Square around 9:00 a.m. on May 10, 2005. He was not searched when entering the event and he stood in Section B, about two (2) meters in front of the bleachers, and three (3) meters from the barricade separating section B from section C. About fifteen minutes after President Bush started speaking, he saw an object flying through the air. It appeared to be an average size, dark handkerchief, wrapped up like a ball, a little smaller than a fist. He saw the object come from his right side as he was standing looking at the President. At the time he saw the object, it was about three (3) meters off the ground, flying in a flat trajectory, descending toward the ground. He thinks it hit the ground about three (3) meters in front of him, in his line of sight to the President. He did not see the object hit the ground but did hear a man start swearing because it hit his daughter's cap. He didn't hear anyone say anything other than they thought it was a stone. It was not until three (3) hours later that he heard it was a hand grenade. He saw a man in dark clothes, not a uniform, pick up the object. About a minute passed from the time the object hit the ground until the man picked it up. He assumed the man who picked the object up was a security guard because he was standing around uniformed security guards before he picked the object up and began running away and the uniformed security guards did not try to stop him. He did not see anyone acting suspiciously before or after he saw the object thrown in the crowed. He didn't hear anything derogatory being said by people in the crowd either before or after the object was thrown. He showed two (2) uniformed security guards where he thought the object was thrown from.
	SA provided with a sketch of Freedom Square including the bleacher and podium used by the President. He was asked to mark where he was standing and where he thought the object landed. He marked the place he was standing with an O and the place where he thought the object landed with an X. He also drew a line indicating the barricade he was standing by. He then placed a dot by the corner of the bleacher where he thought the object was thrown from and drew an arrow in the direction it was thrown. He also drew an arrow from where he was standing toward the podium indicating the direction he was looking.
	No further information provided, investigation continues in T'bilisi, Georgia.

The man was around 45 or 50 years old, approximately 5' 10" tall, 235 pound and well built. He had not shaved for a day or two and was dressed in a greyish top and blackish pants. The young girl was around 10 years old. These two people did not look like they belonged in the B section.	b6 b7
	Later, a woman walked past him toward the barricade between the crowd and the B section. The woman was around 65 or 70 years old, had a very wrinkled face, was approximately 5' 6" tall and weighed about 65 or 70 kilograms. She had a black or dark scarf on her head and was dressed either in all black or all dark clothing. She was very outspoken and was talking against the Georgian First Lady. She was saying things like the politicians were all talkers who did not follow through with actions.

	She arrived at Freedom Square, on May 10, 2005, for the Presidential speech at about 10:00 a.m. She stood in a long line on a cobblestone street waiting to pass through a security check point for Section A and B, the dignitary section. She entered the venue on Leonidze Street and walked in a large group of hundreds of people through a tunnel to section B, her husband was in section A. It may have taken about an hour to an hour and a half from the time she was standing in line to the time she arrived at section B, so it was about 11:00 or 11:30 a.m. She was with a friend,  who had worked in  crowd was well behaved and she was able to move freely, about one (1) or two (2) feet between the people in this section. She was surprised that a majority of the people in section B were Georgian, and she didn't know many people. They had a great view of the President, maybe 100 to 120 feet from him. The section behind the barricade was really packed with no room to move and people were pushing forward toward the barricade. She was worried because the security guards were letting old women from the general public section into section B, and other people would follow behind them. Occasionally the security guards would remove people from their section who did not belong there.
4	When the Presidents were giving their speeches they were unable to hear what they were saying. Sometime toward the end of President Bush's speech she noticed a shuffle in the crowd and an area opened up two (2) or three (3) feet in front of her, and she had a good view of what was going on in front of her. In the opening she was able to see a mens handkerchief laying on the ground with a grenade pin, about an inch and a half long, sticking out under the handkerchief. At the time she did not know what it told her what it was and said it was an explosive and physically moved her from the area. They moved to the other end of the bleachers near the podium. She remembered seeing four (4) or five (5) security guards circled around the handkerchief, just standing their looking at it. None of the guards touched the handkerchief or picked it up and took it away, they just stood there and looked at it. It was about five (5) seconds from when they saw the handkerchief till the time they began to move to the other side of the bleachers. They tried to leave the section but were unable to because of a barricade. She was not comfortable ____told her that being unable to leave. She felt trapped. if it had not exploded yet they probably were okay. As she recalled, this happened about ten (10) minutes before the end of President Bush's speech. At the end of the speech, after the President had left the podium, they climbed over the barricade and left the area.

She did not seek help during this incident because there were security guards at the scene already. When asked why she did not find an American official to tell about the incident she said she could pick out an American in a crowed and did not see any Americans around. The only American she noticed was a black female in the bleachers, section A, searching people as they entered the bleachers. Also, her attention was diverted to a friend who she thought was laboring because of the heat and not having water. She was concerned for her friend and forgot about the grenade. She did not discuss the incident with anyone after leaving the area and did not give it another thought until she saw it on the news the next day. The only person she thought was behaving strangely was a security guard near the handkerchief, but she could not give a description.

SA ______ provided her with a sketch of Freedom Square which had a diagram of the bleachers and Presidential podium. She was asked to mark the area of where she was standing, where the handkerchief landed, where the barricades were located, where she and _____ moved after they realized it was an explosive, and where her friends were standing. She marked the areas on the sketch and then signed and dated the sketch. The sketch, along with the original interview notes were placed in a 1-A envelope and section crowd for about a minute and then stopped and stood with his back to the President scanning the area from left to right.  Once when turning his head to the left and facing the front of the podium, he noticed a little girl standing about half a meter away.

Shortly thereafter, heard a little girl saying "Oh, my head!" in Georgian. At about the same time, he heard the slight sound of an object hitting the ground. He may have felt the impact more than he heard it. When he turned to face the little girl, crowdside was to his left and the child was to his right.  looked down and saw something he initially thought was a stone wrapped in a checkered, dark-colored handkerchief. He then saw the little girl's father who was bent over looking at the handkerchief.  did not speak to the man or his daughter.	bʻ
wanted to nudge the handkerchief away with his foot; but just before he put his foot on the handkerchief or when his foot was touching it lightly, he saw the spoon of a grenade. When he saw the spoon, realized the object under the handkerchief was a grenade. He immediately squatted down and with his hands scooped up the object in the handkerchief and the spoon and stuck them under his jacket. did not feel the pin in the grenade when he picked it up. As he was straightening up, he looked up and noticed a man in the A section pointing toward something. did not pay much attention to the man because he wanted to get out of the crowd quickly.	b6 b7 did not attempt to contact a supervisor before he left the area because he was concerned that if anyone overheard him it could cause panic and a stampede. No one in the area of the grenade seemed afraid, maybe because there was no explosion. He did not hesitate to pick up the device and get it out of the area because he was trained to react quickly in this type situation. He instinctively knew he had to get the grenade away from the crowds. In a reenactment during the interview, it was determined that the time span between hearing the young girl say "Oh, my head!" and leaving with the grenade was approximately four seconds.	b6 b7
left the area by going between the barricades at a fast walk and using his elbows roughly and rudely to make his way through the crowd while telling people he was sick. Another reason he left at a fast walk rather than a run was because he had been cautioned during a briefing not to move too fast because of the snipers on the building tops.	b6 b70

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES;

TBILISI, GEORGIA;

Date specimens received; May 19, 2005

Specimens examined in the Firearms/Toolmarks Unit of the FBI Laboratory:

Q3 Detonator and primer (Your item #2)

Q5 Firing pin (Your item #4)

K11 Five (5) spent primers (Your item #11)

The results of the toolmark examinations are included in this report.

Results of examinations:

The toolmarked impression in the Q3 primer was identified as having been produced by the Q5 firing pin.

The Q3 primer was examined to determine the depth of the impression that was left by the Q5 firing pin. Additionally, the depth of each measurable impression among the submitted known primers was examined. The following table lists the measured depths of the impressions for Q3 and K11 for comparison:

Specime	en number	Depth measured with a Starrett Depth Gage	Depth measured with a Perceptron Contour Probe
Q3	(No detonation)	~.001"	~.008"
K11#1	(No detonation)	No impression to measure	No impression to measure
K11 #2	(Detonated)	Primer pierced, not measured	Primer pierced, not measured
K11 #3	(No detonation)	~.012"	~.012"
K11 #4	(Detonated)	~.021"	~.021"027"
K11 #5	(Detonated)	~.030"	~.035"

The measured depths show that the firing pin impression in the Q3 primer was less than the depth of the firing pin impressions in the K11 #4 and K11 #5 primers that did detonate and also less than the impression in the K11 #3 primer that did not detonate. Therefore, the shallow depth of the firing pin impression in the Q3 primer could be a reason for its failure to function.

This concludes the examinations of the Firearms/Toolmarks Unit. You will be advised of the disposition of the submitted specimens at the conclusion of all requested examinations.

The following is preliminary information on the forensic examinations and support being provided in this matter.

EXPLOSIVE DEMONSTRATION: On May 26, 2005, the following demonstrations were conducted on known standard grenades and grenade components:

- 1. K20 suspended in the center of a 55-gallon drum.
- 2. K21 suspended inside a 6" x 6' tent.
- 3. K22 placed between the front seats of an automobile.
- 4. K23 placed on a 12" x 12" cement paver with target material set at 5', 30' and 60'.
- 5. K17 fuze assembly.

All four (4) grenades (K20 - K23) and the fuze assembly (K17) functioned as designed. Attached to this update are photos of the 55 gallon drum and the auto used in this demo.

Video tapes of the demonstration will be made available on June 1, 2005.

Laboratory examinations are continuing.

You will be expeditiously advised of developments in this matter.

EXPLOSIVES: The submitted specimens Q2 through Q6, grenade body and are consistent with an Armenian RGD-5 fragmentation hand grenade.	d grenade components,
Function of the PGD-5 granade's components and machanisms:

Pick up the grenade in the hand for throwing so that the spoon (Q6) is pressed to the grenade body. (Q2) by the fingers. Not releasing the spoon, pull out the safety pin (not recovered) and throw the grenade at the target. After pulling out the safety pin, the position of the fuze components do not change. The firing pin (Q5) is held in the cocked position by the spoon. At the moment the grenade is thrown, the spoon separates from the grenade and releases the firing pin. Forced by the operating spring (Q6.1), the firing pin hits (dents) the primer (Q3) and ignites it. The flame from the primer ignites the time-delay substance (3.2 to 4.2 seconds delay) which in turn is transferred to the detonator. The detonator explodes and detonates the grenades explosive main charge (TNT). The grenade body is broken up and fragments of the body and fuze fly out in all directions.

LATENTS: The grenade body (Q2) and the grenade spoon (Q6) was processed for latents and no latents were developed.

TOOLMARKS: The primer (Q3) and the firing pin (Q5) are currently under examination. Preliminary examination determined the Q5 firing pin was identified as having produced the impression in the Q3 primer.

METALLURGY: The grenade spring (Q6.1) and the known standard grenade springs (K15) are currently under examination.

DNA: You will be separately advised concerning the results of the DNA examinations.

Re: 175A-WF-231771

The following is preliminary information on the forensic examinations and support being provided in this matter:

TOOLMARKS: See FBI Laboratory Report dated May 25, 2005 for the final results of the toolmark examinations in this case (175A-WF-231771-32).

EXPLOSIVES: Representatives from the National Ground Intelligence Center (NGIC), the United States Naval Explosive Ordnance Disposal Technology Center, Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) and specialists from the Department of Defense (DOD) reviewed radiographs, photographs and the actual grenade and grenade components. The grenade body (Q2) has been identified as a Soviet-era RGD-5 fragmentation hand grenade. The country of origin for the grenade, fuze housing (Q4) and the spoon (Q6) has not been identified at this time. The above mentioned specialists have never seen this type of fuze housing or spoon before.

The manufacturers black lettering "(delta-type mark) -1 004 03 *" present on the grenade body, specimen Q2, (see photograph) has been determined at this time to indicate the following information:

"delta-type mark-1" indicates production location/plant (plant undetermined at this time).

"004" indicates the Lot Number.

"03" indicates the year of production as 2003.

"*" indicates an unidentified marking at this time.

You will be expeditiously advised of developments in this matter.

NOT APPROPRIATE FOR DISSEMINATION TO THE PUBLIC.
